

Building Regulations

BUILDING REGULATIONS

If your CORKCABIN isn't being used for accommodation then the Building Regulations don't apply.

If its adapted for accommodation then it would be considered a mobile home as its falls within the minimum and maximum sizes allowed and is capable of being transported by road.

The requirements are best checked on an individual basis as exemption may be possible.